

90 years of the Central Library of the National Research Council-Update

The Central Library of the National Research Council celebrates 90 years. The event was celebrated in the presence of Maria Elettra, daughter of Guglielmo Marconi, then president to whom the Library was dedicated. This was the beginning of a year's celebrations that can be described as marconias in all respects, considering the next two anniversaries that will fall on 20 July, for the 80th anniversary of the death, and on 2 September, with the 90th anniversary of the presidency of the Cnr.

The Central Library was established on 24 May 1927, following the assignment to the CNR of the legal deposit of technical and scientific publications produced in Italy, so as to obtain the title of 'National Library of Science and Technology'. To celebrate it, a conference was organized - with the President of Cnr, Massimo Inguscio - the Director of the Library, Alberto De Rosa, the honorable Marco Di Lello and Luigi Dallai, scholars and experts, took part.
